

Brevini announces relocation of U.S. headquarters

Brevini, an international gear maker, has announced the company's plans to located its U.S. headquarters and first North American gear design and manufacturing center in Delaware County, creating more than 450 new jobs by 2011.

The Italian company, which specializes in designing and manufacturing planetary gear drive applications for a variety of heavy equipment, utility, mining and marine applications, will locate its North American headquarters and design center in an existing 60,000 square-foot facility in the Muncie Delaware County Park One Industrial Park.

The company will construct an additional 150,000 square-foot manufacturing space at the site in 2010 to manufacture planetary gear boxes for wind turbine energy generation and other low-speed, high-torque applications. Capital investment is projected to be $62.5 million with an annual payroll of $20.9 million when all the jobs (average pay - $46,000) are in place.

Brevini is currently accepting resumes for Management Positions with recruitment for Production Positions commencing in the latter part of 2009.

To express interest in a Management Position with Brevini, register on www.IndianaCareerConnect.com by clicking the following link, www.IndianaCAREERconnect.com.

Indiana Career Connect is the State of Indiana's NO CHARGE service to benefit individuals and employers. It is the most comprehensive source of Indiana job openings to assist you in finding the best match for your skills and experience. For a helpful "Quick Start Guide" on IndianaCAREERconnect.com, click HERE.

Along with registering on IndianaCAREERconnect.com, email your resume stating position(s) of interest to brevini@work-one.org.

Continue to visit www.Work-One.org for continuing updates.

About Brevini

Founded in Spain in 1960 by Renato, Luciano and Corrado Brevini, Brevini has grown to an international developer and manufacturer of planetary and helical gears for industries ranging from manufacturing to energy generation. Headquartered in Italy, the Brevini Company now exceeds $600 million dollars a year in annual global sales. The Brevini Company specializes in application of planetary gearboxes with hydraulic and electric motors for low speed, high torque equipment. The company's reducers are particularly suited to thickeners, agitators, mixers, feeder conveyors, inching, long travel and slewing drives. For more information about Brevini, visit www.brevini-power-transmission.com